Other mills began to buy steel blooms, and soon nearly all the Wheeling mills ere making mais out of steel. The puddlers raged. The manufacture of steel axis must be stopped; therefore the 20 percent mus be demanded by the nailers. "Do it," they said, "or we will break up the Amalgamated Association."

The nailers puid no attention to these threats, but pursued the even tenor of their way, made steel nails, did not inst on the advance of 20 percent, and made money by it.

the puddless swore they would not cot, and became more angry still. The itration was now serious, and President Without of the Anaisamated Association, went down to Wheeling to settle this rouble. A meeting was held which was a meeting. Speeches were made which were more than hot. The nailers and the mailers and the roundlers revised each other, called each ther names, and the chances for a freight were more than good several times, the result was that the puddlers won the fellows that the puddlers won the fellows th ddless swore they would not do

About thus time the Bellaire management promised their men to sign the old cale, excepting the 20 percent clause, i her would stand by them. All right, said the men, and Hersey Lodge withdrew from the Amalgamated Association. The other mailers became rather imagenedent, and the Amalgamated Association disciplined a lodge or two, became it never could permit reb lilion within its rank from this and from the withdrawal of lodges of mailers in a body the association known as the "United Natiers of America' was formed, and the first great disruption in the mans of the greatest and miss powerful labor organization the world ever saw had taken place.

WAR FORMALLY DECLARED.

WAR FORMALLY DECLARED. By the first of June the nailers were all out. The operators had demanded the ont. The operators had demanded the adoption of a new scale based nominally on a $2 card rate and a 17-cent rate at that card for cutting 10-penny nails. The scale was to increase 1 cent for each 25 cents advance in the card rate and decrease in a like ratio, nominally to a $2 card, but in reality to $1. All breakages from carelessness were to be charged to the nailers and a reduction of 25 percent was to be made from the scale for the use of self-feeders. They say that the claim of the demand being filled now is ridiculous, else why is should the manufacturers every time the factories shut down increase the output. Last year the output in the Est was increase amounted to 250,000 kegs, but in the West the forcutting 10-penny nails. Of these two increase amounted to 250,000 kegs. They expected a large strike, and are prepared for cutting 10-penny nails. Of these two demands the first is now being made. The Bellaire mill carried out its engage

The Beliaire mill carried out its engagement and signed the scale. There was no factions delay, but has soon as the factory was ready it started up. But the management keeps faith with the other operators. Their naliers are not permitted to work over-time, nor are they permitted to divide their time with other workmen. The factory is just running along at its shall rate. In this way came about the withdrawal of the maliers from the Amalgamated Association, and it is this movement which will beat them, if they are withdrawal of the maliers from the Amalgamated Association, and it is this movement which will beat them, if they are represented with figures and facts to prove that they are right. THE DISETTION COMES.

The kicks came. The lodge of the Amalgamated Association counteied with the Belmont mill at Wheeling withdrew from the association because it would not on more the 20 percent clause. They were mad, these puddlers. In a body they waited in the manager and asked what cones, to make an example of the manufactures of ironnairs. Cutdown of the manufacture of ironnairs. A HOPELESS SITUATION.

The manufacturers expect to win thi fight through the feeders—their one, their only hope. If through them they can beat the nailers they are just so much shead. The nailers expect to win because they claim right is on their side; because expected a large strike, and are prepared for it. Money has come in Iron unexpected sources, and the union claims to be stronger than ever now. They expected trouble from the feeders, and have joined them as closely to themselves as possible, and now see that all feeders needing work are supplied with it. In the future, too, they will take care of them. expected a large strike, and are prepared mot signed.

OPPERSSING THE FEEDERS.

The contest has now become a fight between the operators and feeders on one side and the nailers on the other. Every good natiler has four feeders and receives half the wages each machine makes. The feeders have always been desirous to become nailers, but no trade has been so jealousy guarded as this, with the protable exception of the making of silk pinsh hats by a peculiar class of hatters. So strict were the laws of the union that a nailer having two sons could only teach one of them haltrade. They have always asserted that the trade was one of peculiar difficulty and required special intelligence and the skill resulting from long practice. The manufacturers on the other hand have always claimed that an average feeder could be made an average feeder so feeders and the nailers. They first wanted a certain percent of their number taught each year, but the nailers wanted to shut down on the teaching for three years, claiming that they had taught too many already. This created a coolness which the manufacturers were not slow to take advantage of. They promised all feeders to put them in charge of machines and pledged themselves to stand by them to the end. The first break was made at the Belmont mil and so n about 600 machines were running.
